So we have a deal, then?

Congress expected to pass rescue package

Chicago Tribune

WASHINGTON In the short run, congressional leaders have achieved their goal of producing an agreement Sunday on a federal bailout of banks and other financial institutions holding bad mortgage debts before the world's stock markets reopened.

But in the long run, the scope and still-unknown effects of the greatest government intervention in the financial markets since the Great Depression—and the remaining underlying instability of the nation's economy—will impose a new political challenge for the next president and Congress elected in November.

Congressional leaders face another immediate and uncertain challenge this week—with the House expected to vote on the plan as soon as Monday, and the Senate as soon as Wednesday—in corralling enough votes to both pass it and present the controversial two-stage bailout as a bipartisan response to a national crisis.

While resistant House Republican leaders have agreed to it, many rank and file members still are balking at the unprecedented bailout of the nation's financial institutions, piling as much as $700 billion of new federal debt on the nation's taxpayers.

Congressional leaders are attempting to frame the measure as their own best compromise on a plan that the Bush administration proposed which they are now calling unacceptable.

This means, in part, dividing the bailout into two phases, starting with $350 billion but requiring congressional approval for a second pay-out. And it includes a demand that if the government does not recoup all the money that it invests in reselling mortgage debt that it purchases, it comes up with a plan to get the financial industry to cover any projected taxpayer losses.

President Bush, who proposed the Treasury

Department rescue and has pushed for it with national television and radio addresses, calls it essential to averting “financial panic” in frozen lending and a “long and painful recession. Congressional leaders agree that it is essential in averting a freeze in credit for everything from home loans and car loans to student loans and credit cards.

DECISIVE MOMENT

A breakthrough came when Democrats agreed to incorporate a GOP demand—letting the government insure some bad home loans rather than buy them—designed to limit the amount of federal money used in the rescue. Another important bargain, vital to attracting support from centrist Democrats and Republicans who are fiscal hawks, would require that the government, after five years, submit a plan to Congress on how to recoup any losses. AP

Debating the debate: The winner is Obama ... or McCain

Barack Obama and John McCain shake hands after Friday's debate. GETTY IMAGES

Associated Press

It was hard to tell if there were more disagreements voiced during the presidential debate between John McCain and Barack Obama or after it on TV.

The networks' pundits moved quickly Friday to put into perspective a debate seen by tens of millions of Americans, although a clear winner didn't emerge. It was a reflection of cautiousness, the closeness of the race and the influence of furious spinning by both campaigns.

The first debate, which was supposed to be centered on foreign policy, concerned the economy for about 40 minutes. Moderator Jim Lehrer of PBS kept his questions simple to get the men talking. He even tried to push the candidates to address each other instead of the camera, a request that had some success as more heated foreign policy exchanges came.

Snapshot polls by both CNN and CBS News showed Obama with a clear advantage among voters in how people perceived the debate performance. Consensus for either side will undoubtedly harden as the debate quickly gets reduced to sound bites and YouTube clips.

“Is the race now different than it was at 9 p.m. eastern time?” asked ABC commentator George Will. “The answer I think is no. This wasn't a game changer. Both had their familiar personas. Barack Obama was the rather tweedy professor conducting a national seminar. John McCain was a rather hotter personality, the national scold.”

Pundits didn't need a calendar to start anticipating the next debate, between VP candidates Joe Biden and Sarah Palin. It's scheduled for Thursday.

Hollywood stars light up Chicago

Last week some of Hollywood's big boys were in town, including David Beckham, Jermaine Dupri and recently divorced Robin Williams. Beckham was here with the L.A. Galaxy last Tuesday for a game against the Chicago Fire. After the game Thursday, Beckham went out with some of his teammates. He went to Rockit for dinner and then hung out at Underground where Dupri was celebrating his birthday. There was no sign of Beckham's wife, Victoria, all week.

Beckham

Also, even though Dupri was in town with longtime girlfriend Janet Jackson for a concert stop on her tour, Jackson did not make an appearance at the nightclub for her beau's birthday. Jackson crashed at the Trump International Hotel on Thursday night and checked out of the hotel at a different time than Dupri the next morning.

Dupri

Finally, Williams came into town and performed at the Chicago Theatre on Friday and Saturday nights. After his performance Friday night, he made a surprise performance at the Lakeshore Theater for Christian Finnegan's show. During his routine Williams joked about being single and referenced his divorce. After his Chicago Theatre shows both nights, Williams went to Gibsons for dinner.

Martini, stilettos and an interview

Best-selling author Candace Bushnell signed copies of her book

"One Fifth Avenue" on Wednesday night at Manor for the premiere of her show "Lipstick Jungle."

Armed with a martini and stilettos, Bushnell did an interview with my intern Kristen Lepore. She talked about how she plans to write a series titled "The Carrie Diaries" due out in 2010 about "Sex and the City's" Carrie Bradshaw's teenage years. Bushnell said she hasn't started writing yet, so she's not sure how it'll turned out.

She also said "it's a bit of a rumor" that she wants Miley Cyrus to play young Bradshaw. However, she does think Cyrus is adorable.

Pilsen residents dig up own data

When citizens have access to information about pollution, they sometimes can bring about change.

In Pilsen, residents dug up EPA data showing the H. Kramer and Co. smelter at 21st and Throop Streets—No. 7 for health risk among Chicago polluters in 2005—was the largest industrial source of airborne lead in the Chicago area.

They started badgering elected officials and environmental regulators three years ago, and federal regulators eventually cited the company for violations of the Clean Air Act unrelated to lead.

Though H. Kramer denies it is responsible for high lead levels found in the neighborhood, the company agreed to clean up its property and dramatically reduce its lead emissions to settle the federal complaint.

“What we went through shows that citizens have to be the watchdogs,” said Lelia Mendez, who has lived in Pilsen most of her life and lives and works a block from the smelter. “The regulators knew this was a problem, but it wasn’t until people got this information out there that they did something.” TRIBUNE

HOW TO GET HELP

Health experts say air pollution is one factor that can raise the risk of a person developing asthma, lung disease, cancer and many other ailments. Chronic exposure increases the risks.

People with environmental complaints can call or e-mail local, state and federal agencies:

>> City of Chicago: 312-744-7672
>> Illinois Environmental Protection Agency: 888-782-7860 or www.epa.state.il.us/pollution-complaint

>> U.S. Environmental Protection Agency: epa.gov/compliance/complaints/index.html

>> Environmental advocates also urge people to contact their elected officials.

Danger in the air

Chicago, county ranked among worst in the nation for pollution

Chicago Tribune

People living in Chicago and nearby suburbs face some of the highest risks in the nation for cancer, lung disease and other health problems linked to toxic chemicals pouring from industry smokestacks, according to a Tribune analysis of federal data.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency spent millions of dollars to assess the dangers that air pollution poses but has failed to follow through on promises to make the research more accessible to the public.

Those who look up Cook County will see it ranked worst in the nation for dangerous air pollution, based on 2005 data. The Tribune also found Chicago was among the 10 worst cities in the U.S.

The factory with the highest risk score in Chicago is a steel mill on the edge of Lincoln Park.

So how much danger does a person living near these factories face? The EPA didn’t try to answer that difficult question. Air pollution is just one factor that can affect the chances of developing health problems.

Instead, the agency’s research sought to compare certain areas with others across the country. Most of the air pollution is legal under federal laws and regulations. Environmental permits limit air pollution but don’t eliminate it.

Yet there are increasing concerns that the rules don’t adequately protect public health.

Minority neighborhoods have been hit hardest, from the predominantly Latino enclave of Pilsen to mostly black communities on the South and West Sides. Of the Top 50 polluters in Cook County in 2005, 60 percent are in areas where black or Latino residents outnumber whites.

Risk scores can change from year to year when emissions from factories change or facilities open and close. In fact, the polluter ranked as the worst in Cook County—Chicago Castings Co. in Cicero—closed this year. That could affect Cook’s ranking in future studies. One factory behind the county’s high risk score is the A. Finkl and Sons steel mill just west of Lincoln Park.

Company officials actively promote themselves as environmentally friendly—a sign stretching over Cortland Street boasts that Finkl has planted 5 million trees, and for years the company hosted an annual Green Tie Ball to help fund highway beautification projects. Yet the chromium, lead, manganese, nickel and zinc it churns into the neighborhood are responsible for nearly a third of the city’s total health risk from factory emissions.

Finkl plans to close the mill near Lincoln Park, where the population is 84 percent white, and move to another site on East 93rd Street on the Southeast Side, a neighborhood that is 96 percent black.

Bruce Liimatainen, the company’s chief executive, said the ranking surprised him, noting that steel mills on the South Side and in northwest Indiana release more pollution.

“We are at the forefront of our industry as it relates to cleanliness,” he said.

But Finkl ranks No. 1 in the city in part because it is so close to densely populated neighborhoods.

Saul Arce practices playing the shofar at Chabad Jewish Center on Sunday. JOSE M. OSORIO/TRIBUNE

Shofar sounds for beginners

The cheeks of 9-year-old Saul Arce puffed out like Louis Armstrong's on Sunday as he blew into a shofar to celebrate the Jewish New Year, Rosh Hashanah, which begins Monday.

Even though Saul's family members aren't Jewish, they were at Chabad Jewish Center of Bucktown Wicker Park on North Avenue to learn about the symbolism of the shofar from Rabbi Yitzchok Bergstein and how to make one.

Bergstein described the shofar as a sort of wake-up call to begin the New Year, and called it the focus of services on Rosh Hashanah.

About a dozen children took part in the lessons, accompanied by parents and other adults who wanted to learn about it.

"Be careful with these horns as we pass them around," Bergstein warned. "Let's not poke each other."

Saul and others carefully measured the depth of the hollow end of the horn with a piece of wire, marking where the tip would have to be sawed off and then drilled, to make the horn into a musical instrument. Once cut and drilled, Saul practiced the sounds, which got louder and deeper as he blew and blew.

"We wanted the kids to have a different experience," said Saul's aunt, Wanda Santiago.

Stebic family sues

The family of Craig Stebic alleged in a lawsuit that WBBM-Ch. 2 parent CBS and several of its Channel 2 reporters inflicted "severe emotional distress" by erroneously implying there was an inappropriate relationship between Stebic and former WMAQ-Ch. 5 reporter Amy Jacobson.

In a lawsuit filed Friday in Cook County Circuit Court, Stebic's sister and brother-in-law, Jill and Robert Webb, are seeking more than $50,000 in damages by claiming WBBM-Ch. 2 and several of its reporters acted in "reckless disregard" by invading their privacy in July 2007 and videotaping Jacobson at Stebic's home.

Channel 2 spokeswoman Elizabeth Abrams said Saturday that although officials have not yet reviewed the Webbs' suit, they look forward to vigorously defending themselves in court.

Illinois State Police Sgt. James S. Jenkner checks the speed of cars Friday on I-294 near the Dempster exit. Jenkner is stationed inside a speed enforcement van that takes pictures of speeding drivers. MILBERT O. BROWN/TRIBUNE

Report: Most work zone tickets dismissed or sharply reduced

With deaths on the rise in highway construction zones, the state cracked down four years ago by mandating stiff fines for motorists caught speeding by high-tech photo enforcement.

Yet this year, Cook County has not recorded a single conviction carrying the hefty fines and court costs, a Tribune analysis of court records has found. The majority of offenders had the charges dismissed outright or reduced to a regular speeding ticket with much smaller penalties.

The enforcement of the law appears spotty in DuPage County as well.

The supervising judge over traffic court in Chicago expressed surprise at the results, while Cook County prosecutors blamed poor photo quality for many of the cases being thrown out by judges or passed over for prosecution.

The relatively few convictions on the heftier speeding tickets caught state transportation officials off guard. The crackdown on speeding in work zones has been credited with a drop in deaths to 21 in 2007 from a high of 44 in 2003.

"We need to work with judges, prosecutors and the state police to improve the program," said Priscilla Tobias, a safety engineer with the Illinois Department of Transportation.

But of the some 800 cases disposed of in Cook County through Sept. 9, charges were dismissed in nearly 500 cases, statistics show. In another 200 cases, judges reduced fines sharply, allowing drivers to avoid hikes in insurance premiums if they passed supervision periods without further violations. Most of the rest of the cases were continued when motorists failed to appear in court.

"There is no such thing as a true conviction in Cook County," one state trooper who requested anonymity said while attending a court call last week in the Rolling Meadows courthouse. "It's frustrating because each county handles it differently."

Rezko may aid corruption probe after all

Antoin "Tony" Rezko, a convicted influence peddler who was once one of Gov. Blagojevich's most trusted confidants, has met with federal prosecutors and is considering cooperating in the corruption probe of the governor's administration, sources told the Tribune.

Rezko's possible change of heart—after years of steadfast refusal—has sent ripples through a tight circle of prominent defense attorneys who represent dozens of potential witnesses and targets in the wide-ranging probe.

His cooperation would give prosecutors investigating the governor and his wife access to someone they have described as an ultimate political insider at the center of a pervasive pay-to-play scheme.

Rezko's trial this year laid bare a culture of scams, bribes and backroom deals stretching from City Hall to the Statehouse.

It even became fodder in the presidential campaign of Democratic nominee Barack Obama, whose fundraising and personal ties to Rezko go back more than a decade.

Rezko has made no deal in the wake of his June corruption conviction, sources familiar with the situation said, but has had preliminary talks with prosecutors before an October sentencing that could put him in prison for years.

AT A GLANCE

Under the crackdown, judges were mandated to fine speeders in 45 mph work zones with minimum $375 fines, court costs of as much as an additional $300 and a violation that would be part of a driver's permanent record, jacking up insurance premiums.

Chicago cop shot in raid on South Side dies

A Chicago police officer shot during an early-morning raid on the South Side has died, police spokeswoman Monique Bond said late Sunday.

Nathaniel Taylor Jr., 39, a 14-year veteran of the department, was pronounced dead at 6:02 p.m.

Police Supt. Jody Weis said the officer was shot in the head and chest and taken to Advocate Christ Hospital in Oak Lawn.

Weis said the suspected shooter was listed in critical condition at Stroger Hospital.

Earlier in the day, Bond said police were at the home in the 7900 block of South Clyde Avenue at about 5:30 a.m. to execute a search warrant. She said the offender was still in his vehicle when he fired multiple times at the officer. Bond said police found packets of narcotics stuffed in the offender's mouth, and investigators later found narcotics and guns in the man's residence.

A release from the police department said officers from the police Narcotics and Gang Intelligence Units were about to execute a search warrant at a building in that area when "numerous" gun shots were fired at the police and one officer was hit. Police returned fire and "struck the offender."

More police hires coming

Mayor Daley says his administration is working on hiring more Chicago police officers but offered no time frame for the positions. Daley spoke Saturday, addressing a pledge that he would hire more employees to work on public safety. Chicago Police Supt. Jody Weis also has promised aldermen that he would hire more officers. The mayor blamed the economic crisis and dropping revenues for the delay in hires. Daley says the city has to reduce personnel costs.

Lettuce warning

The Illinois Department of Public Health is warning of E. coli risks from iceberg lettuce distributed by a Michigan-based company. Health officials say at least five Illinois residents were hospitalized after contracting the bacteria between late August and mid-September. A sixth Illinoisan also contracted E. coli. Michigan health officials issued a public health alert on Friday after E. coli sickened 26 people.

RedEye gets new editor

RedEye named Tran Ha (below) its editor Friday, replacing Jane Hirt, who was promoted to managing editor of the Chicago Tribune last month. "Tran has been at the center of our recent innovation efforts, and we're thrilled to have her lead our talented newsroom," said Brad Moore, RedEye's general manager. Ha has held a variety of roles at the Tribune since 2003 when she joined RedEye as a copy editor shortly after the launch of the newspaper.

Eateries hope green is golden

8 WASHINGTON North Dakota farmers have spent $6 million to open a pair of Washington restaurants, one just blocks from the White House, to showcase food from family farms.

"We believe we are doing the right thing, doing it the right way, and the profit will come," says Ralph DeRose, general manager of Founding Farmers.

The North Dakota Farmers Union has made the investment despite the economic downturn, high food prices and risks inherent in running a restaurant. With Founding Farmers the group is betting on the success of a growing trend: food straight from the farm, in a place with a green focus.

The first restaurant, Agraria, was built in the city's Georgetown neighborhood. While popular with tourists, it has struggled to catch on with people in the city since opening in 2006.

Unlike Agraria, Founding Farmers was built to comply with Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design, a third-party certification for the design, construction and operation of green buildings.

The restaurant focuses on serving food from family farms in the U.S., delivered by co-ops that buy the food directly from smaller, non-corporate farms. Much of the food is bought locally.

CHICAGO CONNECTION

The Balanced Kitchen, a tiny eco-friendly restaurant at 6263 N. McCormick Blvd. in North Center, is built to comply with LEED and also serves vegan, gluten-free food. Business manager Joshua Alper said it's "the whole package."

WHITE SOX 5, INDIANS 1

Win over Tribe keeps Sox alive

Chicago Tribune

After fading near the finish line, the White Sox might have found their second wind.

Thanks to a hitting revival by Paul Konerko and Jermaine Dye and Mark Buehrle's ability to pitch on three days' rest, the Sox kept their playoff hopes alive Sunday with a 5-1 win over Cleveland.

The Sox (87-74) trail first-place Minnesota by a half-game in the AL Central and can force a one-game playoff with the Twins on Tuesday should they beat visiting Detroit and former teammate Freddy Garcia in a makeup game Monday at U.S. Cellular Field.

"I'll take my chance," manager Ozzie Guillen said. "We're playing here."

The Sox were asked repeatedly about facing Garcia, who pitched for them from 2004 to 2006, developed a reputation as a big-game pitcher during the 2005 championship season and married the niece of Guillen's wife, Ibis. He has missed most of the last two seasons with shoulder trouble.

Guillen said he sent a text message to Garcia after Sunday's game.

"[Garcia] is going to compete and battle us and do everything he can to try and knock us out because it would give him great joy to be able to talk a lot of trash to Ozzie," A.J. Pierzynski said. "The bottom line is we were hoping we wouldn't have to play that game. Now we have to, and it will mean something."

Should the Sox lose, it would cap a frustrating end to a winning season in which they led the division by 2½ games as late as Sept. 21.

"Hopefully, this is the start of a new cycle going in the other direction," Konerko said after hitting his fourth home run in three games to help halt a five-game losing streak. "It felt good out there. A lot of the wins we've had this year, especially in the first half, they felt like that. Hopefully, that plays into [Monday], and Gavin [Floyd] takes the baton from Buehrle and runs with it."

After throwing 121 pitches Wednesday, Buehrle threw 111 pitches Sunday, working seven innings, while preserving the bullpen for Monday's game.

"We know the situation and what all this means," said Jermaine Dye, who is 6-for-12 with two home runs in the last three games after going nearly a month without a homer.

"We're not going to panic. Those who haven't been in this situation before might go up and panic, and we expect that. But we've been around."

Fish story

Even if they beat Detroit in Monday's makeup game, the Sox, it would seem, could find themselves caught between the devil and the deep blue sea. Or should we say Devil Rays? (Yes, we know they're no longer those kind of rays, but work with us here.) Sox manager Ozzie Guillen likes to call the Minnesota Twins the "piranhas" because of the relentless way they keep nipping at AL Central division leaders, so it's fitting that the Sox could find themselves in a sink-or-swim situation against the piranhas, with the Rays lurking in the depths behind them. Here's how the scenarios could play out: REDEYE, AP CONTRIBUTED.

3 The Sox lose to Minnesota

Again, sleeping with the fishes. The Twins would win the AL Central division by a game. A loss on Tuesday also would mean the Sox's fifth straight defeat to Minnesota, and seventh of the last eight.

1 Sox lose to Detroit on Monday

They're fish food. Season's over. Gavin Floyd has been tabbed to make the start for the Sox on three days' rest. In Floyd's previous start on three days' rest, he allowed five runs in 6 1/3 innings Sept. 20 in Kansas City. Twins manager Ron Gardenhire added some lighthearted pressure on his White Sox colleague Guillen on Sunday. "It's up to them. It's all on their shoulders now. I don't have to make a pitching move. I don't have to pinch hit anybody tomorrow. It's all on Ozzie's butt, so go get 'em Ozzie and let's see what happens," he said.

2 Sox beat Detroit—face Minnesota in Tuesday's tiebreaker

The Twins would travel to Chicago for a one-game tiebreaker on Tuesday at 6:37 p.m. The Sox's chances look pretty good or pretty bad, depending if you're a cup-half-full or cup-half-empty kind of person. The Tigers have no stake in this game, but this game does give them the chance to play spoiler for a division rival. "I'm sure the last thing those guys want to do is get on a plane, but they are professionals and if I was them and had to get on a plane and come here, I'm going to make it hurt," Paul Konerko said. "We better be ready to play." The Sox also know Detroit's starter very well. Freddy Garcia won three games for Chicago during the 2005 postseason. He's also a close friend of fellow Venezuelan Guillen. But Guillen thinks that won't buy the Sox any favors. "Freddy is not going to go there and just pitch, he's going to try and beat us. I know him real well and he's going to try and show he can still pitch," Guillen said.

4 The Sox beat Minnesota, move on to face the Tampa Bay Rays

The Sox have struggled mightily against the Twins of late, but they've performed well against them on their own turf. They've lost only two of nine games at U.S. Cellular Field this season. Rays manager Maddon said he would start right-hander James Shields, who threw only the first inning Sunday, or lefty Scott Kazmir in the first two games of the playoffs. But he would not say who would be on the mound for Game 1. Shields gave up seven hits and one run in six innings in a no-decision against Chicago on May 30. Kazmir pitched seven shutout innings in his first meeting with the Sox on May 31, but gave up three runs—two of them home runs—and didn't factor into the Rays' 5-3 win at U.S. Cellular Field on Aug. 23.

"The only way we're going to feel good about this, the only way we might not hate each other in the off-season, is we win. That's it. It's going to take a little while to get over this one if we don't go where we're supposed to go."

OZZIE GUILLEN

White Sox manager on the team's bumpy finish to the regular season

SOX HITS

Despite a glaring need for more speed, manager Ozzie Guillen tempered anticipation that the Sox would make major changes this winter. "People think you make trades and bring people in," Guillen said. "We're going to bring in people and say, 'OK, we need more speed,' but they have to play. You're not going to bring in Carl Lewis and all those guys that never played the game. [You need] people who can play baseball, but that's not my department."

» Jim Thome, Paul Konerko, A.J. Pierzynski and Jermaine Dye have some form of no-trade rights, and Joe Crede, Juan Uribe, Ken Griffey Jr., Orlando Cabrera and Toby Hall are expected to become free agents this winter.

PLAYOFF MATCHUPS

The picture is incomplete, thanks to this season-long slugfest between the White Sox and Twins, but here's what we know so far:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

L.A. ANGELS VS. BOSTON RED SOX

Game 1, Wednesday
Boston (Beckett 12-10) at L.A. (Lackey 12-5)

TAMPA BAY VS. AL CENTRAL CHAMPION

Game 1, Thursday
WHITE SOX or Minnesota at Tampa Bay (Kazmir 12-8 or Shields 14-8)

NATIONAL LEAGUE

CUBS VS. L.A. DODGERS

Game 1, Wednesday
L.A. (Lowe 14-11) at CUBS (Dempster 17-6)

PHILADELPHIA PHILLIES VS. MILWAUKEE BREWERS

Game 1, Wednesday
Milwaukee at Philadelphia (Hamels 14-10)

Just saying

1 There's a new old adage: "God protects drunks and babies ... and your White Sox." Actually, drunken babies kind of describes some Sox fans. Heyo!

Well, we're acting like it

2 If the Sox win on Monday, Tuesday's tiebreaker against the Twins will be the BIGGEST ... SOX ... GAME ... EVER. Next to that World Series winner in 2005, but who remembers that lil' ol' thing?

Oh my

3 Three touchdown passes by Kyle Orton? In one game? Against the blitz? I feel faint.

Tennis club

4 I was just thinking about that funny commercial the Geico caveman does with Billie Jean King. Couldn't they have found a more contemporary tennis star? I know Anna Kournikova has just as much time on her hands and the caveman's just her type.

Mad at Madden

5 I like how NBC's John Madden proclaimed that Kyle Orton excels in the red zone because it's close enough he can "make all the throws." Next play: Orton's pass it batted down at the line of scrimmage. Madden seems to have a knack for that so just talk about the other QB, 'kay, John?

He's game

6 Carl Edwards tried a move he saw in a video game. If a fan could compete in NASCAR, that's exactly what he'd do.

With or without you

7 Ben Gordon will come to Bulls training camp. Hold on ... (yawn) ... hooray.

Oh joy

8 Penn State and Missouri beat Illinois, so the Illini's losses are to national title contenders. I'm sure that's some consolation to the folks down in Champaign.

Speaking of college football

9 Seems like no one wants to hold onto the No. 1 spot. When did the BCS become the AL Central race?

FIVE WAYS...

...KYLE ORTON CAN PREVENT TURNOVERS

- » Paste picture of Rex on the ball.
- » Attach ball to string, string to wrist.
- » Make opposing DBs wear mittens
- » Shout "Do-over!"
- » Punt more often.

Go, Sox, go

Yeah, it's the Cubs' song, but the Sox can't afford to turn down extra help right now.

1 What's one word that describes the White Sox's playoff hopes?

"Sacrifice." Because if they lose Monday, Ozzie just might try to sacrifice someone.

"Absolutelyfreakingdire."

"Alive."

"Inconceivable."

"Lucky."

2 Make a prediction about the Sox makeup game on Monday.

It'll be rained out. Or, maybe that will be Bears fans' tears from Sunday night's debacle.

The weight of everyone on the edge of their seats will cause the Cell to shift.

Sox take 4-0 lead but lose 9-6.

Hawk Harrelson will blame umpires for Dow Jones dropping again.

Sox build a 12-run lead and Bobby Jenks says, "I think I can lose that."

3 It's do or die for the Sox. How can the Chicago teams help?

In the spirit of bipartisanship, the Cubs could sneak in and suit up as the Sox.

By setting an example and showing how winning is done.

The Hawks can offer blades, the Cubs bats and the Bulls loose-fitting underwear.

The Chicago Fire can have a moving truck on hand at the Cell on Wednesday.

Three of the tallest Bulls could rob some home runs out there in the outfield.

4 What were you hoping to see in the Bears-Eagles game Sunday night?

At least one offensive TD from the Bears, and by offensive, I mean one that doesn't turn the stomach.

I always enjoy a good quarterback benching.

Morganna the Kissing Bandit. I'm into retro.

I hear word of this mythical creature called a "quarterback." I've never seen one in Chicago.

Brett Favre in a Bears uniform. Oh, but we don't need him.

5 Who failed this weekend?

The Packers. Brett Favre throws 6 TDs for the Jets while Aaron Rodgers throws out his shoulder. Ouch.

The guy who plays Obama on "SNL" ... he's no Tina Fey, that's for sure.

Once again I tried, and failed, to pass Algebra 101.

The Mets failed their fans, but managed to make my day.

Georgia's Knowshon Moreno ... for the loss to 'Bama and the mohawk.

Bears D's goalline stand makes Orton's 3 TDs stand up

Associated Press

No meltdowns for the Bears this time. Instead, they came up with a big stand.

BEARS 24
EAGLES 20

Alex Brown stopped Correll Buckhalter at the goal line late in the game, and Chicago hung on to beat the Philadelphia Eagles 24-20 Sunday night after head-scratching losses that raised questions about their killer instinct.

After blowing big leads against Carolina and Tampa Bay, the Bears hung on.

The Eagles (2-2) threatened to take the lead after a 41-yard field goal by Robbie Gould made it a four-point game with 10:28 remaining, launching a 75-yard drive.

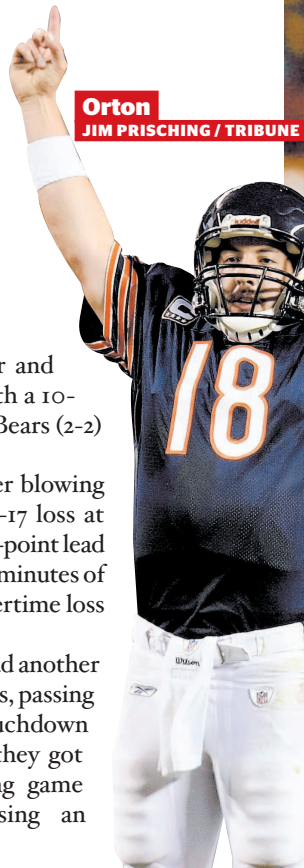

Problem was they needed 76.

They had second down at the 1 when Tony Hunt got tackled for no gain by Kevin Payne and Mike Brown. A leaping Buckhalter, filling in for injured running back Brian Westbrook, got stopped a few inches short by Adewale Ogunleye on third down. He tried to go through the line on fourth down, only to be met by Alex Brown.

The Bears took over and Matt Forte sealed it with a 10-yard run that gave the Bears (2-2) a first down on their 17.

They'll take this after blowing a 14-point lead in a 20-17 loss at Carlina, then seeing a 10-point lead disappear in the closing minutes of regulation in a 27-24 overtime loss to Tampa Bay last week.

Donovan McNabb had another good game for the Eagles, passing for 262 yards and a touchdown and interception, but they got little from the running game with Westbrook nursing an ankle injury.

JIM PRISCHING / TRIBUNE

UP NEXT At Detroit Sunday: noon, Fox

The Lions are at a crossroads. They started 0-3 and did little right before having Sunday off. Matt Millen was fired as team president last week, which leaves coach Rod Marinelli vulnerable. When the Lions hire a new general manager, he probably will want to name his own coach. The players can respond in one of two ways: They can quit on Marinelli, or they can dig deeper to try to save his job.

» The Lions came into Week 4 ranked 31st in the NFL in defense. The Bears will be able to move the ball.

» On defense, watch DBs Charles Tillman and Nathan Vasher against receivers Calvin

Johnson and Roy Williams. The Bears always have been able to contain Vasher's college teammate, Williams, but this is the first time they will play the Lions with Johnson and Williams both healthy and playing well. This gives the Lions a big size advantage, but it's not as easy to capitalize on such an edge against a zone defense. Look for the Bears to play a lot of zone. TRIBUNE

The Bears' Marty Booker (left) celebrates with Devin Hester on Sunday after Hester's touchdown in the second quarter against the Philadelphia Eagles at Soldier Field. NUCCIO DINUZZO/TRIBUNE

Bryant plays despite tragedy
Associated Press

TAMPA Matt Bryant choked back tears. A day after burying his 3-month-old son in Texas, the Tampa Bay kicker booted three field goals to help the Buccaneers beat the Green Bay Packers 30-21 on Sunday.

"I don't know what I needed today," Bryant said. "It worked out OK. Could've been better, but given the circumstances it turned out OK."

Bryant's youngest son, Matthew Tryson, was found dead at home in Tampa on Wednesday. It will be several weeks before the kicker and his wife learn the cause of death. Bryant didn't practice all week, and coach Jon Gruden left it up to him to decide if he would play.

"The biggest thing for me, I wanted to honor Tryson's name," Bryant said. "I mean, I don't think it was very fair for his life to end so short. This is the best way I believe I could get out and honor him. I miss him and wish he was here, but he was here with me. He helped out."

Bryant kicked field goals of 23 and 36 yards in the second quarter. His 24-yarder, with 2:26 to go, finished a six-minute drive and put the Bucs ahead for good, 23-21.

"Today was his day. It was all about Tryson for me. I talked with him, personally, in my head throughout the game. I just wanted to remind him that he's my baby boy and that he's with me all the time."

The Bucs awarded a game ball to Bryant, who has rebounded from a subpar preseason to play an important role in two of Tampa Bay's three victories. He kicked a winning field goal in overtime last week at Chicago.

WHO'S THE MAN

Brett Favre, Jets
The veteran QB completed 24 of 34 passes for 289 yards and a career-high six TD passes in New York's 56-35 win over Arizona. Here's guessing he got points deducted for those throwback uniforms. Judges?

WAY TO GO ROOKIE

Rams rookie WR Donnie Avery scored on a 37-yard pitch, but it didn't do the Rams much good. They lost 31-14 on Sunday.

HOMETOWN HITS

Despite failing to reach agreement on a long-term contract extension for the second straight summer, Bulls guard Ben Gordon on Sunday confirmed he would attend training camp. "I'll be there," Gordon wrote in a text message.

» Former Bull Michael Ruffin is expected to attend training camp on a non-guaranteed contract.

In the wake of Saturday night's 38-24 loss to Penn State, Illinois (2-2) fell out of the national rankings. Michigan (2-2), also unranked, is coming off its first signature win under new coach Rich Rodriguez, a 27-25, come-from-behind effort over Wisconsin in Ann Arbor. Penn State (5-0) jumped from 12th to sixth in the rankings. Missouri (4-0), which beat the Illini 52-42 in the season opener, has climbed to No. 4.

AT THE BUZZERJohnson takes over Cup lead

Carl Edwards did everything he could Sunday, including purposely bouncing off the concrete wall at Kansas Speedway, but it wasn't quite enough to beat two-time NASCAR Sprint

Cup champion Jimmie Johnson. Edwards, who lost the lead to Johnson 47 laps from the end on the final pit stops by the leaders, said he knew what he was doing when he made his desperation move on the final trip around the 1.5-mile oval. "I planned on hitting the wall, but I didn't plan on the wall slowing me down that much," Edwards said. "In video games, you can just run into the wall and run it wide open. That's what I did, but it didn't quite work out the same as the video game."

Sooners are right now

Oklahoma sits atop the AP Top 25 after the first upset-filled weekend of the season gave the media poll a powerful shake. Alabama was both a mover and a shaker, as the Crimson Tide rose to No. 2 after a surprising 41-30 pounding of Georgia. Previously top-ranked Southern California lost at Oregon State on Thursday to set the tone for the weekend. Nine ranked teams lost, six to unranked foes.

Manny Ramirez celebrates on Thursday after the Dodgers clinched the NL West championship. AP

Man oh Manny

Cubs close out with loss but focused on Dodgers' postseason power

MILWAUKEE The Cubs and Dodgers have played each other 2,024 times since their first game in Brooklyn in 1890, splitting the all-time series 1,012-1,012.

And they'll face each other for the first time in the postseason beginning Wednesday at Wrigley Field. They'll kick off the best-of-five National League Division Series with Ryan Dempster facing Derek Lowe.

The Cubs won five of the seven matchups against the Dodgers in 2008, including all three at Wrigley. But all the games took place before the Dodgers acquired slugger Manny Ramirez, the biggest reason they turned their season around and won the NL West.

"They were a tough team when we faced them, and they added Manny," closer Kerry Wood said. "It'll be a little different look, but we've got advance

CUBS HITS

The Cubs wound up with 97 wins, the most since they went 98-56 in 1945, the last time they won the pennant. They led the league in runs scored with 855, their highest total since 1930, and they finished third in the league in pitching with a 3.87 ERA.

» They have never won a postseason game west of Chicago, combining to go 0-8 in San Diego, San Francisco and Arizona.

» The last Chicago-L.A. area postseason series was the White Sox's win over the Angels in the 2005 ALCS.

scouts who have been watching them. We'll get good reports and have a good game plan."

The Cubs found out their playoff opponent about 45 minutes after Ryan Braun's two-run eighth-inning homer off Bob Howry launched Milwaukee to a 3-1 victory Sunday at Miller Park.

After beating the Cubs, Milwaukee's players and coaches watched the end of the New York Mets' loss to Florida on the clubhouse TV, then came out to party on the field with about 30,000 fans celebrating in the stands. That gave the Brewers the wild card and put them in the postseason for the first time in 26 years.

The man who almost single-handedly carried Milwaukee into the postseason was left-hander CC Sabathia, who handcuffed the Cubs on four hits in a complete game while pitching on three days' rest.

The Cubs spent the last week waiting to see whom they'd face in the playoffs, resting regulars and pitchers to prepare for the postseason. Manager Lou Piniella played most of his regular position players Sunday but opted to use relievers the entire game rather than going with a starter.

Angel Guzman, Chad Gaudin, Neal Cotts and Kevin Hart combined to pitch six scoreless innings, but Michael Wuerz walked in the tying run in the seventh, and Braun went deep on Howry in the eighth to put the Brewers ahead. Howry is on the playoff roster, which Piniella will unveil Tuesday.

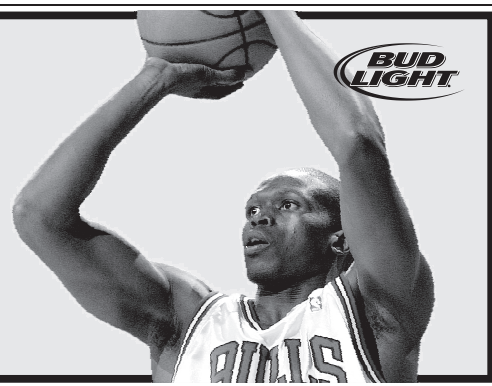

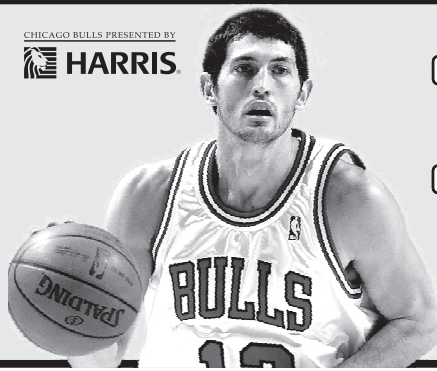

"I didn't see anything today that changes anything," Piniella said. "Actually, our kids pitched well today. We made a game out of it."

NOTICE OF PRE-BID CONFERENCE
2009 SOLIDS DISPOSAL PROGRAM

On October 6, 2008, at 10:00 AM, a Pre-bid Conference for the 2009 Solids Disposal Program will be held in the Board Room, 100 East Erie Street, Chicago, Illinois. The purpose of the Conference is threefold: (1) to provide an overview of the program; (2) to clarify any procedural and/or technical aspects of the program; and, (3) to offer an environment for interaction between potential prime subcontractors.

The 2009 Solids Disposal Program, with a total value of approximately $8.43 million dollars, consists of ten contracts. Bids for these contracts will be received during the months of October, November and December 2008; January and February 2009; the tentative bidding schedule for the individual contracts will be available at the Conference. The contracting areas are as follows:

Description	Number of Contracts	Approximate Value
Truck Hauling of Solids	2	$2.24 Million
Tractor-Mounted Paddle Aerators w/Operators	1	0.42Million
Heavy Equipment w/Operators	1	0.49 Million
Tractor-Mounted Aerators & Tillers w/Operators	1	0.55 Million
Landfill Services	1	0.12 Million
Beneficial Reuse of Biosolids	1	2.16 Million
Dried Biosolids for a Utilization Site	1	1.60 Million
Tractors & Tiller/Sludge
Pumps w/Operators	1	0.62 Million
Furnish and Deliver Screening System w/Conveyor	1	0.25 Million

Two truck hauling contracts, one heavy equipment contract, one beneficial reuse of biosolids contract and one dried biosolids utilization contract are subject to the requirements of the District's Affirmative Action Ordinance. All of the contracts are structured to encourage competitive bidding by small and/or protected class business.

We urge interested parties to attend the Pre-bid Conference on October 6, 2008.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING AND OPPORTUNITY FOR WRITTEN COMMENT

In accordance with the requirements of the Illinois Health Facilities Planning Act, Notice is given of receipt of a change of ownership exemption application (E-011-08 Rush North Shore Medical Center, 9600 Gross Point Road, Skokie, Illinois 60076) from Evanston Northwestern Healthcare Corporation, 1301 Central Street, Evanston, Illinois 60201. The applicants are proposing to merge Rush North Shore Health Services (the sole corporate parent of Rush North Shore Medical Center) and Rush North Shore Medical Center into Evanston Northwestern Healthcare, Inc. The fair market value (FMV) of the facility is $53,734,360 and the anticipated acquisition price is $64,000,000.

Rush North Shore Medical Center (Hospital) is a 251-bed facility providing general acute care. All categories of service and beds currently provided at the Hospital will not substantially change for at least 12 months following the completion of the proposed transfer, and there will be no change resulting in the restriction of patient admissions or reductions in access to care. Rush North Shore Medical Center will remain the operating entity licensee. The proposed transfer will occur January 1, 2009 and/on the approval from the Illinois Health Facilities Planning Board. The applicants have certified that no adverse actions have been taken against them by the federal government, licensing or certifying bodies of the State of Illinois. The applicants have also certified that the facility will not adopt a more restrictive charity care policy than the policy that was in effect one year prior to the transaction. The hospital has provided certification that the compliant charity care policy will remain in effect for a two-year period following the change of ownership transaction. The applicants also certify that they intend to maintain ownership and control of the facility for a minimum of three years.

This proposed change of ownership will benefit the community as the Applicant will maintain the Hospital as an on-going healthcare resource for the residents of the community (subject to applicable financial and operational constraints). Among other benefits, the Applicant will be in a position to independently provide streamlined management and deployment of resources to benefit the Hospital. The proposed transfer will preserve patient access to other area providers and referral sources. The proposed transfer is not expected to alter the economics of the Hospital. The Hospital will continue to comply with all quality control requirements necessary for accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations and state licensure.

The Applicant has prepared a written response addressing the review criteria contained in 77 Ill. Adm. Code 1110.520 and response is available for public review on the premises of the Hospital.

Interested parties may obtain information on the proposed transaction from Jeff H. Hillebrand, Chief Operating Officer, Evanston Northwestern Healthcare Corporation, 1301 Central Street, Evanston, Illinois 60201 (847) 570-5151.

A public hearing on the proposed change of ownership will take place pursuant to 77 IAC 130.910. The public hearing is scheduled for Friday October 17, 2008 at 10:00am at the:

Skokie Public Library
Mary Radmacher
Meeting Room
5215 Oakton Street,
Skokie, Illinois 60077

The Public Hearing is to be held by the Illinois Department of Public Health pursuant to the Illinois Health Facilities Planning Act. The hearing is open to the public.

Get your comfort food fix without breaking the bank at newly opened John's Place Roscoe Village. JASON LITTLE FOR METROMIX

Johnny be good

Comfort food comes to Roscoe Village just in the nick of time

new on the scene

By M. Kathleen Pratt and Terri Mooney
METROMIX.COM

Get there now

John's Place Roscoe Village

2132 W. Roscoe St. 773-244-6430

It's not exactly ideal to open a new business the same week a nationwide economic crisis breaks loose. But if you've got to take the leap, it would be hard to position yourself much better than John Manilow, the guy behind John's Place in Lincoln Park and this new Roscoe Village outpost. In tough times like these, we're all searching for a little reassurance. And what's more reassuring than comfort food? Like the original John's Place, this spinoff serves home-style classics with a bit of flair. The menu adds just a couple of new dishes, such as the Roscoe Burger, a half-pound burger with caramelized onions and cheddar cheese, but mostly sticks with familiar John's Place faves like chicken pot pie and turkey meatloaf with chipotle barbecue sauce (right). Entrees average just $11, leaving you with more cash left over to stuff under the mattress.

A Taste of New on the Scene

Sample dishes from spots you've read about in our New on the Scene column at metromix.com and sip wine from Sam's Wine & Spirits. Participating restaurants include Blue 13, Ian's Pizza, Mana Food Bar, More, Piccolo Sogno, Real Tenochtitlan and Yats.

When: 5:30 p.m. Monday
Where: Sam's Wine & Spirits, 50 E. Roosevelt Rd. 312-663-9463
Cost: $10. R.S.V.P.: metromixpromotions@tribune.com

Bite size

» Lincoln Park finally gets its frushi fix when a new outpost of Orange rolls into the 'hood in October.

» The folks behind Butterfly Sushi Bar and Thai Cuisine on Grand Avenue are opening another location at 1421 W. Chicago Ave. in October.

» Boston Blackie's brings its legendary burgers to Lincoln Park with a just-opened location at 1962 N. Halsted St.

» The India Grill opened at 1112 S. Wabash Ave. mid-month with a lunch buffet only. Dinner service starts in October.

» Fro-yo spot Berry Chill opened a second location at 132 N. LaSalle St. in early September.

3 to try: More recent openings

Jaipur

847 W. Randolph St. 312-526-3655

Just when we thought Randolph Street had it all, along came Jaipur to remind us what had been missing: authentic Indian food. Done up in sultry shades of red, the 60-seat dining room is likely more polished than your favorite Devon Avenue haunt, and the food is on par—if not better. All of the usual suspects make the menu, including tasty takes on saag paneer and chicken tikka masala. If you like more heat, go for the spicy lamb rogan josh and finish with a mango lassi to cool the burn.

RoPa

1146 W. Pratt Blvd. 773-508-000

This Mediterranean-influenced contemporary American spot occupies the former Cafe Suron space in Rogers Park (a.k.a. RoPa—hence the name). Look for a broad menu covering everything from salads and sandwiches to pasta, seafood, steak and chops. A wine cellar and tasting room is in the works for later this fall; a sidewalk cafe is set to debut next summer.

Flaco's Tacos

725 S. Dearborn St. 312-922-8226

The folks behind Hackney's Printer's Row branch out from burgers at this new South Loop taco joint. Flaco's serves tacos, of course, as well as other affordable Mexican eats such as burritos, quesadillas and tortas. Margaritas, beer and wine are coming soon, but for now, you can take advantage of the temporary BYOB policy.

2 to watch: Coming soon

Farmerie 58

58 E. Ontario St. 312-440-1818

Farm-centric, sustainable food is the focus at this contemporary American bistro set to open Wednesday in the former Republic Pan-Asian Restaurant & Lounge space. Executive chef William Alexander, a CIA grad and former Kendall College instructor who's logged time at Emeril's and Commander's Palace, is serious about local products. He's sourcing ingredients from Illinois or neighboring states to create his seasonal fare, and the cuisine will get even more local next year when he plants a rooftop garden.

Province

161 N. Jefferson St. No phone yet

Randy Zweiban, most recently the executive chef at Nacional 27, is going solo with this spot in October. His contemporary American menu, divided into sections such as "raw," "small to share," "big" and "bigger," takes inspiration from Spain and Central and South America. Province is on the ground level of the CTA's environmentally friendly headquarters, so expect green design elements like reclaimed wood shutters, sustainably harvested cork floors and recycled leather chairs.

Jam band

Weezer tries to switch things up on tour, new CD

The Detroit News

Say you're Weezer. Sure, you're one of the most successful bands to emerge from the '90s alternative rock canon, but 15 years into it, a little bit of been-there, done-that has begun to set in. What do you do?

Why, you throw a hootenanny, of course.

Weezer's current tour, which rolls through Chicago on Thursday, includes a three-song suite where 30 audience members will join the band on stage to perform three Weezer classics: "Island in the Sun," "El Scorcho" and "Beverly Hills." The lucky few will jam with the band on guitars, wind instruments, horns or whatever else they decide to bring to the jamboree.

Naturally, the band got the idea from frontman Rivers Cuomo's mom.

"Rivers asked her, 'What did you used to do for fun when you were little?' And she said, 'Sometimes we would just get a bunch of acoustic guitars and go play folk songs,' and they called it a hootenanny," Weezer drummer Patrick Wilson says. "If you can get everyone together, and everyone's playing different instruments, and if you can arrange it right, it's actually pretty great."

The hootenanny is just one example of how Weezer is freshening its sound. Wilson admits the band was simply going through the motions on 2006's much-maligned "Make Believe," and when it came time to record this year's "Red Album," the band took great strides to switch things up.

"We did a lot of work on this record to make ourselves feel more unified—and more satisfied," Wilson says.

One way they did so was by tweaking the one constant in Weezer's music: Cuomo's role as frontman. On "The Red Album," Wilson, guitarist Brian Bell and bassist Scott Shriner all take a stab at lead vocals, and writing duties were shared between all members of the band.

"Rivers never really wanted to be 'The Frontman,' and I think he likes the idea of other people sharing that responsibility," Wilson says. "Plus, at some point you have to grow or else it just becomes more of the same."

With Weezer, however, sometimes people just want more of the same, and the band is constantly being dogged—for not living up to its past.

You can't please everyone, Wilson says.

"If bands are around long enough, they have to deal with different factions of fans, and you have to come to terms with the [original fans] and then your newer fans," he says.

"There are definitely those people out there that think we haven't done anything good since (1997's) 'Pinkerton,' and that's fine, that's how they see Weezer. But I have to say it does feel a little unusual," Wilson says. "I think Weezer is just one of those bands that can have people constantly complain about them and still be fans. But you'd think if you were that unhappy with a band, you'd just stop listening to them."

Best and worst first-date movies

BAD

The Dark Knight »

The most popular film of the year, and one of the most critically praised. So why is it a bad first-date movie? Too many hot actors, nihilistic themes and a crippling 152-minute running time. Prognosis: One more date (but just for lunch), followed by a breakup by e-mail, no returned calls and possibly a restraining order.

Wall-E

Another excellent film that should be avoided as a first-date movie, unless both parties are 8 years old. Taking a potential boyfriend or girlfriend to "Wall-E" says, "Let's cuddle," not "Let's get it on."

Prognosis: Three more dates with nothing more than a peck on the cheek at the end of the night, followed by a decision to "just be friends." Added sting comes later when she starts a passionate relationship with your best friend.

GOOD

Burn After Reading »

Coen brothers comedy—great first-date movie. Coen brothers drama—horrible first-date movie. If it has a bad wig or a bloodstained wood chipper, stay far away.

Prognosis: Engaged within a year. Move in together in a year and a half.

Forgetting Sarah Marshall »

Judd Apatow deserves a special-achievement Oscar for his contributions to first-date movies. Prognosis: Sex that night, followed by six months of dating and a very amicable breakup.

SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE

Movie moves

Films for that first date if you want a second

San Francisco Chronicle

The first-date movie may be the single most important decision in any relationship.

It sets the mood for the evening and sets the tone for all dates to come. The difference between marital bliss and a Charlie Sheen-Denise Richards train wreck of a relationship is the difference between "Charlie Wilson's War" and "Saw IV." You wouldn't fail to take a shower or escort your date to a McDonald's on a first date. So why would you bring him or her to see "Babylon A.D."?

Think back to the worst first date that you've been on. Chances are good it was accompanied by a completely horrendous movie. And yet you don't want too good a movie. Presumably you're going to want to get to know this person better (or at the very least figure out when you'll be hooking up). Do you really want to dedicate the next hour to trying to figure out what happened in the last half of "Syriana"?

This is getting complicated. Let's sort things out with a few first-date-movie rules:

» Pay attention to the running time:

Nobody in the history of first date movies got any action while seeing "Gandhi" (unless it was during the intermission). Pick something in the 85- to 110-minute range.

» Avoid hot actors: Bonus point if your movie stars mostly homely or slightly obnoxious actors, because you'll always look good by comparison.

» Some bad movies are OK: You probably won't be paying attention to the movie anyway, so who cares if it's not going to win an Oscar. Pick something from the "forgettably bad" genre of movies—kind of bad, but not so bad that it reflects poorly on you for selecting it. Most movies starring Matthew McConaughey or Cameron Diaz qualify as forgettably bad. Avoid anything starring Jessica Alba and Dane Cook.

» Too much plot is a negative: The ideal first-date movie results in about five minutes of post-movie conversation.

» Content is key: No one's in the mood to knock boots after watching a movie that focuses on child molesters, rapists, the Holocaust or an AI Gore PowerPoint presentation. Mainstream thrillers, comedies and PG-13 horror usually make the best first-date movies.

» Avoid animated films: Taking a first date to see "Kung Fu Panda" might seem like a good idea, but it sends the wrong message. Let him or her see your "cute" side later.

» Stay away from porn.

Can a simple scan show your risk for heart disease?

Did you know that a simple scan of the artery in the neck has been shown to correlate to arteries in your heart?

Research is underway in your area to determine if a cholesterol medication combined with an investigational medication can reduce plaque build-up in the arteries. If you have high cholesterol, are taking a cholesterol medication, or have a history of heart disease, you may qualify for this study.

All qualified participants will receive a scan of the neck artery, investigational medication and standard cholesterol therapy at no cost as part of this study.

Compensation for travel may be available to those who qualify.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO...

Libra

Sept. 23-Oct. 23

There's a new moon in your sign, helping to grant your wishes. If your fondest dream is to be seduced by a stranger, it might happen. If you yearn for your longtime honey to sweep you off your feet with a juicy proposal, this could be on the menu.

GET US ON YOUR PHONE

Need your horoscopes but don't have your RedEye nearby? Just head to redeye.chicago.com on your mobile phone.

Scorpio

Oct. 24-Nov. 21

If you don't have a hot romance going on, you tend to get depressed. Venus is urging you to chase after the cutie or hottie who really does it for you. Stop making excuses about how this person is too good for you. Go for it.

Sagittarius

Nov. 22-Dec. 21

Sometimes you repeat certain patterns over and over. Pluto is telling you to stop sabotaging yourself. If you always screw up a relationship just when it's getting serious, realize that you can change this behavior.

Capricorn

Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Admit it. You still feel a little something for that ex. Maybe she drove you crazy, but she also hypnotized you with her beauty. Or maybe he was stupid about a lot of things but had a heart of gold. The moon is stirring up fond remembrances.

Aquarius

Jan. 20-Feb. 18

A friendly new moon is bringing you attention from sexy friends. You'll have to decide whether to move from the platonic stage to the flirtatious stage. It's OK to explore. Just don't make any promises you can't keep.

Pisces

Feb. 19-March 20

You and your partner could discover some new turn-ons, thanks to sensual Venus. Maybe you'll find out that he's secretly hot for leather and chains. Maybe you'll learn that she gets hot and bothered by silken sheets. Play the sexual detective.

Aries

March 21-April 19

Just when you thought it was over, the moon drags you back in. A former flame will show up on your doorstep, begging forgiveness.

Or your high school sweetheart will look you up on the Internet asking if you're married. You'll have to decide whether to say "yes" or "no."

Taurus

April 20-May 20

You're feeling frisky, thanks to Venus. You'll want to get down and get funky with someone. This could prove complicated since you might be in between relationships. You might need to consult your little black book to find a friend to play with.

Gemini

May 21-June 21

Sometimes you can be accused of being superficial, but that's just because you're not always comfortable showing your feelings. The moon is reminding you not to be too closed off from other people. Make sure your honey knows how much you really care.

Cancer

June 22-July 22

With Mars marching ahead in a friendly sign, you'll demand results. If your honey is hesitating about making a commitment, you'll give her an ultimatum. If your guy keeps rescheduling an important date, you'll tell him it's now or never.

Leo

July 23-Aug. 22

It's time to expand your social circle.

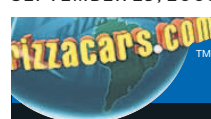

The sun is encouraging you to chat with people who aren't your usual "type." Kiss a biker dude or a hippie chick. Hang out with artists and anarchists. Broaden your mind and open your world.

Virgo

Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Stop playing hard to get. Venus is telling you to knock off the nonsense and get right to the truth. You know you're mad about a certain someone, and you need to make your feelings known. Don't be a shy boy or girl.

A pirate's life for him!

Depp's ready for more 'Caribbean,' but who will be his lady?

The House of Mouse announced big news last week: Captain Jack is back.

Johnny Depp has signed on to reprise his role as Captain Jack Sparrow in the fourth installment of Disney's "Pirates of the Caribbean" franchise, Variety reports. No word yet on when the swash-buckling blockbuster is due for release, but you can bet that the flick will have more of the action-packed zaniness that has made it a box-office hit.

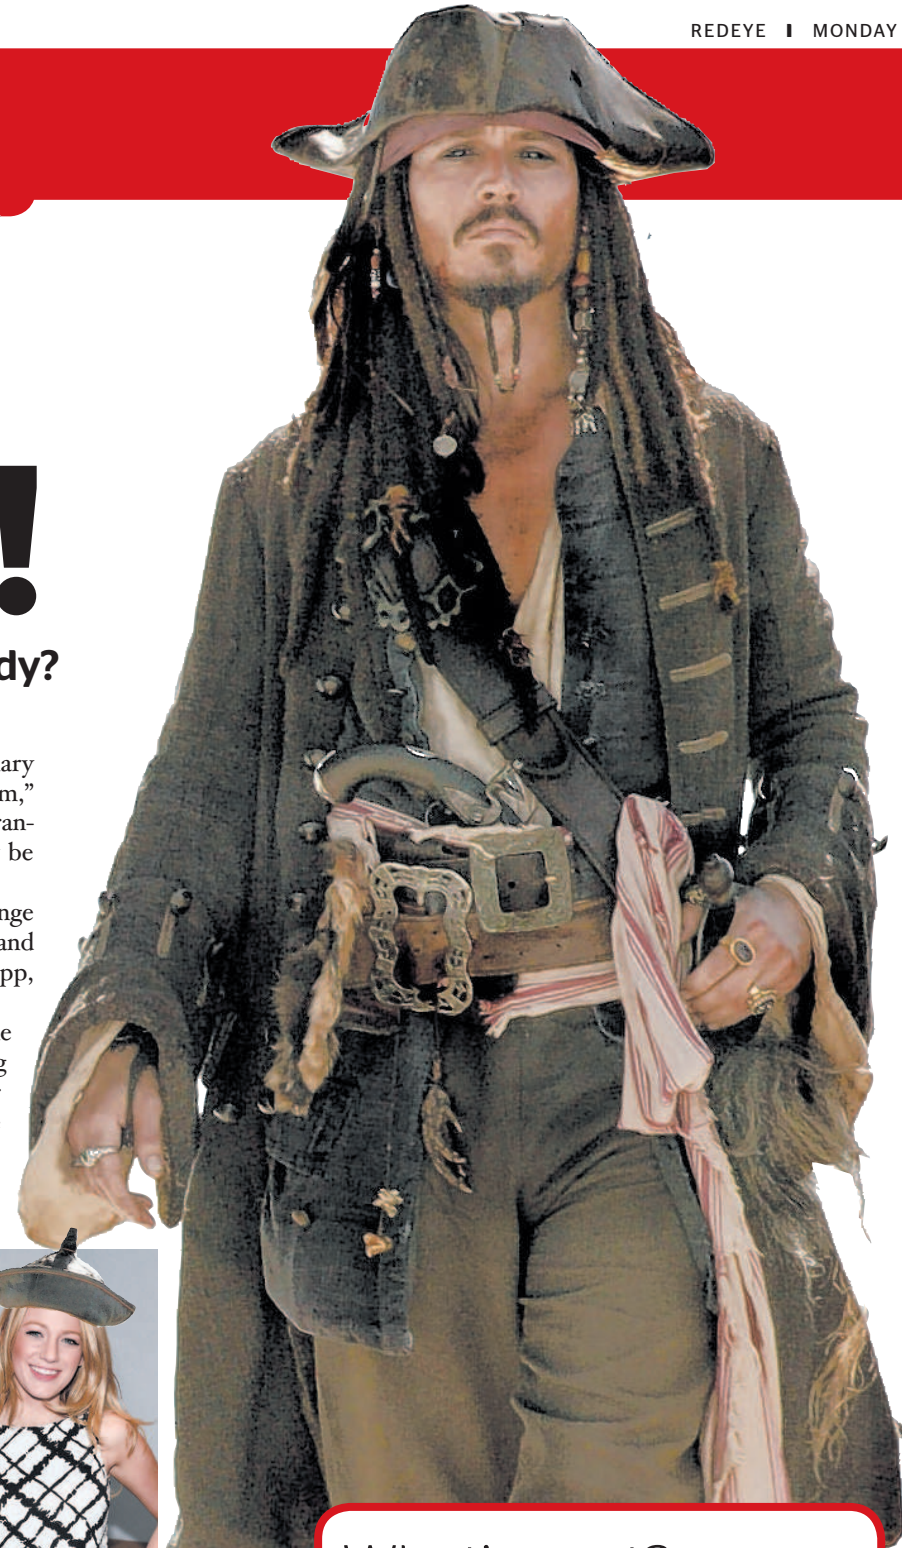

The big question is: Who will play the leading lady? Keira Knightley, who played the feisty Elizabeth Swann in the first three flicks, told "Access Hollywood" this month that her pirating days may be over.

"I think it was wonderful and an amazing opportunity and those films were just extraordinary and I was extremely lucky to be a part of them," she said when asked if she'd come back to the franchise. "But no. I think my pirating days may be over."

Say it ain't so! Of course, anything can change between now and the movie's production date, and there were few details about who, besides Depp, was onboard for the project.

Still, RedEye couldn't help but think about the possibility of other Hollywood starlets taking up the "Pirates" mantel. Here are a few of our (way, way, way premature) suggestions for the movie's next leading lady if Knightley doesn't come back.

KATHERINE HEIGL

WHY SHE'D BE PERFECT: She nailed comedic timing in "Knocked Up."

WHY SHE WOULDN'T: Might find the "Pirates" material unworthy of an award—like she said about "Grey's" at the Emmys.

MAGGIE GYLLENHAAL

WHY SHE'D BE PERFECT: Like Depp, she's done a range of indie and blockbuster flicks.

WHY SHE WOULDN'T: She's not exactly the one you think of for a "larger than life" kinda role.

MEGAN FOX

WHY SHE'D BE PERFECT: After "Transformers," she's got the blockbuster thing in the bag.

WHY SHE WOULDN'T: Didn't she say "[bleep] Disney" in that GQ article? Yeah she did.

HAYDEN PANETTIERE

WHY SHE'D BE PERFECT: A "Heroes" vet, she's onboard with the action-adventure thing.

WHY SHE WOULDN'T: Hard to say if the cheerleader image would translate to the open seas.

BLAKE LIVELY

WHY SHE'D BE PERFECT: On "Gossip Girl" and "Sisterhood of the Traveling Pants" she brought sassy back.

WHY SHE WOULDN'T: Like Panettiere, she may have trouble stepping out of her very defined role.

What's next?

In case you missed it, there was more movie news that came out with the Johnny Depp announcement last week at the Walt Disney Studios showcase of upcoming projects for industry insiders.

Depp also is onboard to play Tonto in a new "The Lone Ranger" movie, Variety reports. And the rumors that he'd star as the Mad Hatter in Tim Burton's version of "Alice in Wonderland" were confirmed. The "Wonderland" adaptation is scheduled for a 2010 release and will use 3-D technology similar to that used in "Beowulf," the trade publication reports. In other news, Disney moved the release date of its "Cars" animated sequel to a year earlier, for a summer 2011 release. Also, according to Variety, a third "National Treasure" movie starring Nicolas Cage is in the works, and Oprah Winfrey is onboard to voice the mother of the princess in the upcoming animated feature "The Princess and the Frog."

Paul Newman:

1925-2008

GETTY IMAGES ARCHIVE

Film legend Paul Newman's death brought reaction from all over Hollywood. Here are a few.

"There is a point where feelings go beyond words. I have lost a real friend. My life—and this country—is better for his being in it."

ROBERT REDFORD,
who co-starred with Newman in two movies

"He was my hero."

JULIA ROBERTS,
who was on the board of Newman's Hole in the Wall Gang charity

"Paul was a very fine actor and a really good race driver. But mostly, he personified humanity—always taking care of those who were less fortunate. For me, this will be his legacy."

DAVID LETTERMAN

"Paul was an American icon, philanthropist and champion for children. We will miss our dear friend, whose continued support always meant the world to us."

'Runway' blocked

Not so fast. Heidi Klum, Tim Gunn and "Project Runway" aren't headed to Lifetime just yet.

A preliminary injunction was ordered by New York Supreme Court Justice Richard Lowe on Friday in a lawsuit filed by NBC Universal against the Weinstein Co., which produces the hit reality series hosted by supermodel Klum.

NBC Universal had aired the series on its Bravo channel. It sued Weinstein after the production company made a reported $150 million deal with Lifetime for the show.

Palin, er, Fey returns

Tina Fey reprised her role as Sarah Palin on "Saturday Night Live," again appearing as the Republican vice presidential candidate in an opening sketch.

Amy Poehler played CBS' Katie Couric, parodying the interview with Palin last week. Poehler, though, mostly played straight man to Fey, who ratcheted up her performance of Sen. John McCain's running mate by satirizing her foreign affairs experience.

When Poehler's Couric pushed Fey's Palin to specifically discuss how she would help facilitate democracy abroad, Fey gave in: "Katie, I'd like to use one of my lifelines. ... I want to phone a friend."

Surprise!

Scarlett Johansson and Ryan Reynolds are the latest celeb couple to tie the knot in a quickie wedding.

The couple got hitched on Saturday at a remote wilderness resort outside Vancouver, according to usmagazine.com.

They announced their engagement in May when Johansson was seen rocking some serious bling.

"We're just enjoying our time," the actress told The Associated Press last month. "We're just recently—very recently—engaged. So, you know, we're just taking it easy. And no big plan yet. But it's a good time and we're just ... enjoying our time to be young and engaged."

"I mean, I'm 23. There's no reason to rush into it. Everything feels very natural and relaxed." Hmm.

FOB video fallout

The return of Fall Out Boy might have some of you excited for new music from the band from the 'burbs, but Popeye is a little peeved. Yes, Popeye. The Sailor Man.

Last week, band mouth-piece Pete Wentz was miffed about surprise product placements in the band's latest video and posted his thoughts on petewentz.com. Then, the post was replaced by a photo of The Sailor Man and Bluto with censored plastered across their mouths. As strange as that was, when rollingstone.com picked up the story, it managed to get stranger as Popeye (a cartoon character) took offense to Wentz's action.

"Well blow me down. I didn't give Mr. Wentz permishkin to use me face on the website," Popeye the Sailor Man wrote to the Rock Daily blog at rollingstone.com. "Or to have a 'censored' tape over me mouth. I gots me a noggin to eats me some spinach and give that Wentz a good pulverizing. Uck ka ka ka ka."

GN'R's 'World'

It's official, more "Chinese Democracy" is in your future.

While die-hards are clamoring for a release date for the decade-long project from Axl Rose and his latest incarnation of Guns N' Roses, rollingstone.com has confirmed that the song "If The World" will appear in the new Leonardo DiCaprio/Russell Crowe movie "Body of Lies."

The song will play during the credits, but it will not appear on the soundtrack for the movie. No official date for the release of "Chinese Democracy" has been set.

Locklear's mug shot

Locklear arrested

Heather Locklear was arrested on DUI charges over the weekend, The Associated Press reports.

The "Melrose Place" star on Saturday was seen leaving a parking lot and "driving erratically," according to the AP. An officer noticed the 47-year-old actress' car parked on a state highway and blocking a lane in a wealthy community about 90 miles northwest of L.A.

She was taken to the police station, where she was tested for alcohol and drugs. She was booked on suspicion of driving under the influence of prescription medication and released from custody.

In June, Locklear checked into a medical clinic to seek treatment for anxiety and depression, according to the AP.

Spears

Brit runs to 'The Hills'

First, a snippet of Britney Spears' new single was leaked earlier this month. Then, the release was pushed back. And now, finally, "Womanizer" has hit the airwaves. Spears' new song made its official debut Friday morning on New York radio station Z100. It is the first single off her upcoming album "Circus," due out Dec. 2, her 27th birthday.

The video for "Womanizer" is not finished yet, but the song will play during Monday's episode of MTV's "The Hills," according to billboard.com.
